

Why Should We Care About Development Finance? ...because it's our money!

Vol 1, Issue 30, February 3, 2018

FRDI Bill is a Problem, Not a Solution

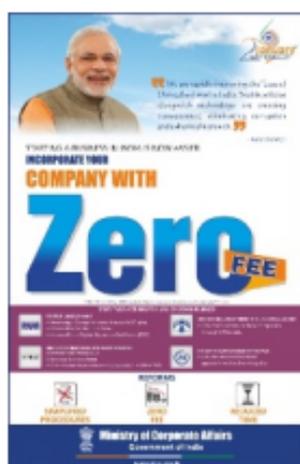

While it is projected as a radical step the Modi government took towards addressing the menace of non-performing assets (NPAs), it is based on the recommendations of a Financial Stability Board, formed post 2008 financial meltdown to ensure that governments would not end up bailing out such financial institutions, as done in the US then. As a part of G20 countries, India accepted the recommendations of the Board and it is manifested in the form of FRDI in India.

Read more...

Thousands have asked their MPs to not to legislate FRDI Bill, have you? Visit repealfrdi.net to know more.

It Is Time to End the Business Rankings of the World Bank

The Doing Business ranking is today's version of the Structural Adjustment Programs (SAPs) that devastated the livelihoods of millions in the developing world through the withdrawal of state intervention and the forced liberalization of national economies in the 1980s and 1990s. Read more...

Three-day Workshop on Sustainable Energy Concluded

The objective of the workshop, which was organised between January 26-28, 2018 in Hyderabad was to enable a dialogue amongst the activists of Andhra Pradesh and Telangana regarding the challenges and ground-reality of people's struggles; build critical perspective on Energy, Environment and its relation to the Finance; and to demystify the different aspects of finance, banking crisis, and energy's contribution in it. Read more...

Forthcoming Event:

February 4, 2018, Patna: A public meeting titled 'Save Public Sector Banks: Save Indian Economy' to highlight the crisis unfolding in the name of addressing the NPA problem and to contextualise the threats faced by public sector banks in general. Read more...

Centre for Financial Accountability, New Delhi
www.centa.org

To subscribe, write to:
newsletter@centa.org

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list