The Economy This Week!

The fourth report card in a series of 10 report cards by the Financial Accountability Network India, that attempts (even if not exhaustively) to glance through and decipher the realities of the government's performance across various sectors from a financial and economic lens. While the divisive and jingoist hyperboles in the media facilitate a collective amnesia, the report card is an attempt to brings back the question of accountability.

An article on India's labour market.

As it is impossible to refute the report card, it is necessary to look at where we stand in this regard. The Centre for Financial Accountability, the Civil Society Network, the Education Rights Network, the Natural Resources Defence Council, the National Environment Trust Fund, and the Asia Pacific Network of People Affected by HIV/AIDS, all submit that the government's guarantees for farmers have also proved to be fruitless. Farmers have constantly been on the path of struggle to get their voices heard and their demands met, but their efforts have been in vain. The government's guarantees for farmers have also proved to be fruitless. Farmers have, however, been excluded from the guarantee schemes.

The International Labour Organization in its recent report on India's labour market, which also highlights the contribution of women to the workforce, indicates that the government has failed to implement its own policies.
