Why Should We Care About Development Finance? ...because it's our money!

Volume 7, Issue 49, June 07, 2024

The Economy This Week!

The Modi 3.0 government is returning to parliament after winning a third term, but a new scam has already put a fresh taint on its record. The world's first exit poll stock market scam as it is being called, crashed the stock market last week and Rs. 30 lakh crore is allegedly swiped out from the pockets of mostly retail investors. With a mostly old-new cabinet in place, will the scam be investigated?

On one hand, the government is putting all its might behind having a say in the global economy, yet its track record in international finance and geopolitics is not probed as much. India & Global Finance: An Annual Review, 2023-24, attempts to fill this space by exploring every facet of the subject matter in great detail and gives a compelling overview of the current state of international politics and transnational finance.

India & Global Finance 2023-24: Strategies, Challenges, and Opportunities in a Shifting Geopolitical Landscape

International finance and geopolitics are quite dynamic and will tend to alter each day. We must have a clear view of our nation and where it stands in this landscape. It is thus necessary that we do frequently look at this scape and the Centre for Financial Accountability is attempting to do so with its first edition of the India & Global Finance: An Annual Review 2023-24.
